The biennial Quality Building Award (QBA) 2008 is now open for nominations. Founded by seven Hong Kong building and construction associations, the new theme for this year's award will be to 'set no boundary for quality buildings', followed by a special tagline 'expanding QBA to include all quality projects from every corner of the world.'

On top of the original residential and non-residential award categories, a new special awards category has added to QBA 2008. The main purpose of the 'Special Merits of QBA 2008' is to pay recognition to distinguished achievements in the specific areas of heritage, innovation and sustainability.

Projects outside Hong Kong will also be recognized as a sub-category of the special awards, although judging criteria for this sub-category will be equivalent to other award categories.

"Quality Building Award has been one of the most popular awards within the industry since its launch in 2001. Other than recognizing efforts and contributions of local professional project teams, a new mission for us this year is to promote the QBA concept around the globe," says Professor Peter K. W. Mok, Chairman, QBA2008 Organising Committee.

The objective of QBA is to acknowledge quality building teams that help construct buildings with outstanding quality. RFP
